General Savoff says: 'Rumania's frontiers are very ex tensive, and are open to invasion on a great scale, and the Central Powers, owing to their geographical position, are in the position to attack her at many points, and even deliver attacks against her territory in a concentrated action. An attack delivered simultaneously from the north, west and south, in case one of these should succeed, may bring disaster to the Rumanian army. This, of course, is not the ease now, as the Rumanians have sucseeded in forcing their way into Transylvania and have achieved here not only a political and tactical success, Bremen is now virtually conceded by but have also secured a substantial strategical advantage. Danube Is Barrier

> "The southern frontier of Rumania is the Danube, which is a formidable obstacle for both parties as far as of fensive operations are concerned. Northwest of Giurgin the Rumanian-Bulgarian frontier takes a bold curve away from the Danube and reaches the Black Sea between Varna and Balt-chik. North of the frontier between he Danube and the Black Sea is the Dobrudja and Constanza, the only prominent seaport of Rumania. The Rumanian-Dobrudja frontier is over one hundred miles in length, and its narrowest point is thirty-seven miles broad, between Constanza and the bridgehead of Czernavoda. The terri-tory in the southern part of Dobrudja, which the Rumanians seized during the second Balkan war in 1913, ought to have served as an improved frontier for which it was destined so as to af ford a good offensive base against Bulgaria. "On the narrowest strip in the Dovoda and Constanza is most important from a strategic point of view, and if we once succeed in securing the bridge or its remains, it will be a heavy blow to Rumania. Toward the north of the bridge the Dobrudja is not an important strategic sector, as the marshes and the delta of the Danube make it impossible to operate on it."

Increase, In Line With Matson Action. Will Be Effective November 1

Increases in freight rates between Honofulu and San Francisco, both directions, effective November 1, were announced yesterday by C. Brewer & Co., Oceanic agents, in line with an announcement made last week by Castle & Cooke, Matson agents. The in-areases are twenty-five cents a ton on all products except bananas and sugar. Bananas pay forty cents a bunch, ap-proximately five dollars and thirtybree cents a measurement ton, which is more than any other commodity pays.

fothing Definite As To Sugar Sugar remains at three dellars. No aformation is obtainable as to whether it will go up. The contract has four years to run. There was favorable comment in the city on a letter pubished in The Advertiser yesterday which asserted that sugar should bear part or all of the increased expense caused by higher wages granted to stevedores. Matson increases on down freight are effective with the Wilhelmins, due ere Tuesday, and on up freight were effective with the sailing of the Matonia Wednesday.

No Word of Truth In Story From Coast, Says Local Concern

C. Brewer & Company deny abso lutely that there is the slightest vestige of truth in a story printed in the ut a "merger!! of their plantation

In part, this story rons as follows: "The most probable assumption is that a merger of the Brewer plantations is contemplated, and the Eastern inquiries from several sources would indicate that the deal is pretty well along towards consummation. It is well known that Henry St. Goar, who, with associates, controls Hutchinson and l'anuhau, is in New York. St. Goar, it may be added, has very large interests in Honokaa, a Schaefer property, and in Onomea, another Brewer property.

Merger' Is Panciful "With St. Goar is E. Faxon Bishop, president of C. Brewer & Company, factors for 165,000 tons of Hawaiian out-Accompanying them is C. B. Wells, who can swing control of Wailuku Sugar Company, the second largest property for which Brewers act as agents. In addition, it is believed that St. Goar is in a position to deliver control of Honokaa. In other words, these three men, with the cooperation of John D. Spreckels and John A. Buck could swing control of plantations with as output of about 175,000 tons."

Interviewed yesterday, C. Brewer & Company said: "This is just copy, written to fill the paper. Some broker s probably trying to work up a boom sugar stocks and has allowed his

Kauluwela Cottage Has Windows Shattered in Shameful Way

Hoodlumism is rife in Honolula.

Hoodlumism is rife in Honolelo.

Gangs of young toughs seem to be all about the city and acts of depredation and vandalism, in most cases senseless, are of frequent occurence. Still the police seem unable to cope with the situation, for no arrests are reported.

The despolistion of many young Ponciana Regin trees in Wilder Avenue a few weeks ago is a case in point. Even with rewards rotaling $200, offered by The Advertiser and the Outdoor Circle, the vandals are still at large, free to commit further depredations.

The latest case of vandalism was one just reported to the board of education authorities.
